Yellow shading shows the part of each day when the Moon is Void.
All times are Pacific. Adjust for your particular time zone.

Moon Voids are times when nothing connects. The music of life plays on, but the rhythm is disrupted. We can't keep the beat, so dancing is nearly impossible. It's as if the subtle energies underlying the meanings behind events and experiences just shut down. The ether loses its elasticity, synchronicity takes a holiday, and the normal patterns of apparent cause-and-effect come apart.

Moon Voids are interpreted in astrology as times of minimal results—less productivity, less movement, less overt meaning. This is the ebb in the short-term ebb-and-flow. Life seems normal enough on the surface, but it doesn't much go anywhere. Things don't play out the way they seem to be heading.

So the message of a Moon Void is to slow down and smell the roses. Get off the treadmill. Take time out for a little cosmic siesta. Avoid the exigencies of real life—let business and relationships lie fallow. To whatever extent possible, don't initiate, don't make decisions, and don't invest expectations. Instead, wait, rest, and reflect. Nurture yourself. Daydream. Contemplate your navel. Exhale.

Yellow shading shows the part of each day when the Moon is Void.
All times are Pacific. Adjust for your particular time zone.

Dates in blue are the period when Mercury is in its retrograde phase.

Moon Voids are times when nothing connects. The music of life plays on, but the rhythm is disrupted. We can't keep the beat, so dancing is nearly impossible. It's as if the subtle energies underlying the meanings behind events and experiences just shut down. The ether loses its elasticity, synchronicity takes a holiday, and the normal patterns of apparent cause-and-effect come apart.

Moon Voids are interpreted in astrology as times of minimal results—less productivity, less movement, less overt meaning. This is the ebb in the short-term ebb-and-flow. Life seems normal enough on the surface, but it doesn't much go anywhere. Things don't play out the way they seem to be heading.

So the message of a Moon Void is to slow down and smell the roses. Get off the treadmill. Take time out for a little cosmic siesta. Avoid the exigencies of real life—let business and relationships lie fallow. To whatever extent possible, don't initiate, don't make decisions, and don't invest expectations. Instead, wait, rest, and reflect. Nurture yourself. Daydream. Contemplate your navel. Exhale.
